

Moving Up

Developing the diversity of leaders in social care

Moving Up is a development programme for all managers in health and social care who are looking to step up and establish themselves within senior management roles. It supports all those seeking to move up especially those from a black, Asian and minority ethnic (BAME) backgrounds.

Developed for social care managers in the private, public or third sectors, Moving Up provides a package of support and development for those who want to build their leadership capability within an interesting and challenging programme.

Through a series of practical, interactive workshops, you'll access a range of exciting development opportunities enabling you to develop the knowledge, skills and confidence to accelerate your career. It will also allow you to engage with others in similar positions to build up strong networks of support and develop the confidence to lead at a senior level, not only in your organisation, but across the sector.

 The programme gave me the space to evaluate my leadership style and learn how to be a more effective and inspiring leader

Maria Hamood, Bristol City Council

The Moving Up programme offers a package of support and development which includes:

- interactive workshops and residential development sessions over a five-month period, exploring leading-edge thinking and practice
- action learning, peer support and networking opportunities for you to connect with, and learn from, other managers from across the sector
- access to a wide range of tools and resources for practical application in your workplace.

Moving Up will enable you to:

- develop your leadership potential as a care professional
- enhance your capability to lead in a complex and challenging environment
- increase your confidence as a leader and develop skills to motivate your teams and other leaders.

Moving Up will enable your employer to:

- develop valued, respected, confident leaders who consistently adopt a service-centric approach
- develop caring leaders who can activate a continuous culture of improvement
- grow the next generation of leaders to find innovative solutions to improve the quality of care.
